ABSTRACT

M. BASRI study of Community Food Stock Institution in Sumbawa District West Nusa Tenggara Barat Supervised by SETIA HADI and HEDI M IDRIS.

Sumbawa district is one of nine regency/municipality in West Nusa Tenggara Province which has potential natural research to support safety food now and the future. Base on sentral statistic bord (2005) agricultural sector was the bigest contribution for national food stock. Foverty in Sumbawa district was caused by economic, sosial, cultural and institution aspect. This research are focused 1) To identify food stock institution society characteristic in Sumbawa district. 2) To identify factors which can influence the role of community food stock institution to inrease safety food in Sumbawa district. 3) Identify role of community food stock institution from jurisdicton, boundries role of representative to increase safety food in Sumbawa district. 4). Identify the strategy of community food stock to inrease safety food in Sumbawa district. The Method of analysis 1) Logistic Regression Analysis. 2). Descriptif Analysis. 3) SWOT and Analytical Hierarchy Proses (AHP) Analysis.

Characteristic analysis shows that age’s members of food stok in research area are 20 up to 50 years old with revenue revolve Rp. 500.000 up to 1000.000. The higheset members education degree are elementary school. 0,5 up to 1 Ha area are own property right, where this activitie is prime revenue. Food stock capacity, price stability and market demand are revolve under target. While the supervisor support very significant in food stock developing. Regresion analysis shows that wages, food access, property right and supervisor support are influences society to food stock institution in developing food tenacity factors. Developing of food stock institution society strategy which enhance food tenacity system developing, human resources developing, infrastructure developing, agribusiness system developing and partnership developing.

Key Word : Food Surplus, malnutrition, food stock institution.